

(Where were you born?)

Fort Sill. At that park, I don't know what they call it. They got a park now, west from Medicine Creek.....that big bridge where you go over, right west from it across, lets see, the creek runs right like this. It's back in there. The park's right in there at Fort Sill.

(Do you remember what it was called?)

I don't even know.

How many brothers and sisters did you have?)

There was twelve of us in the family.

(Were they all the children of your mother and father?)

They were all the children of my mother and father. There was nine boys. There's more than that. Nine boys and me and my sister. Nine, ten, eleven, twelve...there were thirteen of us. There was thirteen of us.

(This was when you were in Fort Sill?)

Yeh, after I was born there was some more. The oldest ones were four brothers ahead of me, then I was born.

(And that means you were the fifth one?)

Yeh, I was the fifth one. Fifth and older than the younger ones. And I have two brothers living. All the rest of them died. I just got two and I'm their only sister that's left.

(Who are they?)

Bill Poafpybitty and Isaac Poafpybitty.

(Where do they live?)

Bill lives in Lawton and Isaac is staying with some folks down in Indianahoma.

(What did your father do to get money? Did he have land or did he farm?)

Yeh, we had this whole section in here back up the hills up that way.

(Where you are right now?) Yeh, this is my father's land, and the next was my mother's.
