

(And did you have some children with him?)

Yeah, I had some. I got a daughter and a boy...the girls that little boy's mother...

(What were their names?)

Mawdean. Deans the oldest. Deans older than the girl, and Dean then Mawdean. I got two.

(And then Mawdean is this boy's mother?)

This boys mother. And Dean is married, but he never did have no kids.

(Now what was the name of the second man you married?)

Jerry Saupitty.

(What things did you do between the time you were divorced in the Fall and then married again in July?)

I didn't do nothing, I just stay with the folks.

(How did you meet your first husband?)

I met him just like going to a pow-pow, camp meetings. That's where I met him. He was an awful nice man but then all at once he just start going with another woman. And I found out and I just said, "Go ahead, if you want her, you go ahead and marry her." And I divorce him. "Cause I can't keep you if that's what you want." So I just divorce him. But this other man that I married, he died.

(Do you remember when?)

Year of 48. 1948.

(So you married him in 1918 and he died in 1948?)

Yes. I live with him 28 years. He was really a nice man. He was a Christian man.

(What did he do?)

He didn't do nothing. He don't work. He had enough money to support us.

(Where did he get his money?)

He had his dad's land and his mother's....quite a bit and they just
