

Uhuh. Yes.

CHILDHOOD FOODS:

(Did you stay over at your grandparents house for a while?)

Well, it was just a little ways, just about 10 feet from where we lived. Cause that cabins were all in a row and then we had other cabins that were..we had another log cabin that supposed to be the smoke house and then we had a large improvised corn crib. See they had plenty of corn and supplies that they had. And my grandmother always sold..see we quite a number of cattle and then they had..I think they said they milked right around 52 and they said they had to..you know my grandmother made this old time cream cheese and sold it to the..I remember they furnished her with great big round bags that she makes cheese in. Because I remember that when I was in the hospital, Dr. Eiker and Dr. Margo of the Bone and Joint Hospital where asking me one day and so I told them. They said, "What did you eat as a child?" We notice the structure of your bone and cause I came out in seven days and I started healing and he said most Indians, prior to that they had an Apache girl who had osteomyelitis. And they asked me if we had anything like that and I said no as a rule Caddos eat a lot of vegetables. And he said, "The bone structure shows that you had well nourishing food while you were in the growing stage." And see I was already 45 when they did that work there at the Bone and Joint Hospital and so that's what they asked me. I said I always had plenty of milk and plenty of meat and greens of whatever I wanted.

(Who milked the cattle that your family had?)

Well my grandma and my grandpa and may dad and then sometimes they had extra help cause they started pretty early.
