

wrestle with each other?)

Yeah, that's the way they do.

(You mean..)

Yeah, they used to have such things as that. Races they used to have all sorts of..horse races. They used to have horse races and wrestling and seni games, that's the main thing that I know.

STORY TELLING:

(Did your father tell you stories around the house?)

Oh yes. That was always..see no stories were told in the summer, it's always a long evening of winter.

(Uhuh. What kind of stories did he tell you?)

Oh, just various kinds. All pertaining to life.

(Did he ever tell you any stories about animals?)

Oh yes.

(Different things that animals used to do?)

Oh yes. Uhuh.

(Did he ever tell you stories about coyote?)

Oh yes, there's a lot of stories about coyotes.

(Could you tell one of them? One of the stories about coyotes?)

RECITATION OF A COYOTE STORY:

Well, I'll tell you a little short one that I usually use as a ..said, once there was a coyote, he was traveling through. He came upon a creek kind of a deep gully. He said these little ducklings, goslings were playing. He said they would pick their eyes out and through them in. So this Uncle Coyote as he's addressed by the Caddos, he come along and he said, "Why what are you all doing?" They said, "We're just playing a game of throwing your eyes into the creek and thendiving in after them."
