

(Did they ever keep cats around the house?)

Oh yes.

(Would they let them in the house?)

Sometimes but mostly out.

(Did they ever give you any reasons for staying away from certain places that you mentioned?)

Oh yes.

(What would some of the reasons be that they told you to stay away from?)

Well, such as you know of danger points and something like that. That was mostly their reasons. Where you weren't supposed around. Especially girls they weren't supposed to wander around out in the woods unless they were accompanied by an elder.

(Were there any religious places around here that the Caddo told their children to stay away from?)

Not that I know of.

(Were there any places around that people used to go and pray at? Any special places?)

RELIGIOUS ATTITUDES TOWARD THE HOME FIRE:

No, that was done in the home. Just like the present day. Because each individual home as I said had a flint fire. One special fire that was to be kept up day and night. And when you went off somebody had to stay there and keep that fire up. Because they never used matches. They just had that one fire. Then if anybody came and they wanted to make a fire, then they would have to come and get the coals from there and start their fire. There's one principal fire and that's all.

(Did your mother and father keep a flint fire like that?)

Well, everybody did. That was in the kitchen where we kept it. Where
