

that. You could handle them, you know, when you're riding a horse, you know.

(Yeah, yeah.)

See, these long, you make them long, you can't hardly do it.

(How--how long are the arrows that they shot with, you know, during that game?)

What?

(How long were the arrows that they used, you know, just to practice?)

Oh, they got, you know, their own arrows, you know. All of them come about that long, you know. They--oh, about little, over two feet long, about that long. Oh, they have, you know. It's just according what kind of arrow you want to use, and, maybe, you have a way of making them, you know.

(Yeah.)

I see one boy over here, he was my uncle, he fool with arrows too, you know. He make them. He make them, make them. Oh, he--he knew how to make arrows, and he can make them and same way with a bow. He says--he told me one time, he says, "You can use this Bois'darc." That's what they use mostly.

(Yeah, yeah.)

Bois'darc. One time he used a, oh, mulberry.

(Mmm-hmmm.)

Mulberrys are good bow, but it's not, you know, it's not hard.

(Yeah.)

It's limber all right.

(Yeah.)

You know, it gives you a quick snap, you know.
