

(Greer: What about rabbits? Do you ever eat rabbits?)

Well, they're getting scarce here, rabbits--

(Greer: Jackrabbits, too?)

Yeah, Rabbits, squirrels--all that animal's scarce, now.

(Jordan: Tell us about that turtle you killed and cooked last week.)

(Greer: That made me pretty hungry--)

(Jordan: Because we both want to be invited to turtle dinner!)

TURTLES, EATING OF

Well, Muggsy (Alfred's nephew) sent word down here. He wanted me to come down there. We were going somewheres, one day--right there where Irene's house (is)--we all got in the car and just started to go and there he was (the turtle). Went across our path. So I told 'em to stop. So they stopped, and somebody got off--and we put him up. Put him in long bucket. Kept him 'bout three or four days before I got over there. I went down there and cleaned him pretty good.

(Jordan: How'd you do that?)

Well, I cut him, leg here. Cut behind that leg here, right against the shell up in the middle part, turn him over and use my hand--clean him out--took all that--got seventeen eggs. Cleaned him pretty good. Water hose. Use water hose to clean him out. So I told--two of my boys--I told 'em to go
