

(Evelyn: Bill Achilta and Ward (Achilta) And Buckley Cisco.)

Oh, I talked to Bill Achilta's boy the time I run the meeting over here. He come in and I told him about what I had. Said I got this--(unintelligible phrase) it don't really belong to Apache Ben--that's his grandpa,--that's his grandma's uncle. That's Harold. You know Harold---Harold Achilta. Harold's grandma and Apache Ben they're raised--you know. Apache Ben's daughter's daughter--I mean Apache Ben's sister's daughter--that's Harold's grandma.

Blanche.

(Blanche Achilta?)

Blanche Taho.

(Well, now how did Apache Ben get this road from Old Man Chibatoch?)

LIPAN APACHES INTERMARRIED WITH OTHER APACHES

Well, they're kinda friends in some way. 'Cause Chibatoch, he's a part Lipan and part Mescalero. Apache Ben, he's Lipan. Lipan Apache. We have Keresos-- (or kadesos--tape hard to understand) I guess you heard about those tribes-- they're all died out.

(What was it you called them? (the Kadesos?)

Kereso. Kereso.

(Say that again.)

Kereso.

(Again)

Kereso. (Trying to see if he's saying Kereso or Kadeso.)

(All right, what is that?)

That's a tribe that used to live in Mexico. Apaches. Lipan. They're kinda, you know--just like Kiowas and Apaches. Speak the same language. And some live over here--these Thurman--you know Thurman--Thurman's grandpa. His name is Jim White. He's Kereso.

(He is? Is he still living?)
