

race, this buffalo hunter pushed him towards that cliff and this man had that feather on his head. Well, it blew over and it completely came over this buffalo. The buffalo fell in that cliff. He beat these buffalo and that's how he got his wife and his boy back.

2. (Will you tell me about the time you went to Bear Butte? This is a real ghost story, or spook story, whatever you want to call it.)

A story about haunted houses. He said that this happened in Montana.

That it was a real story, spooky story.

There was a nice house, a big house. There used to be a boy living in there, but I guess he passed away. Different ones tried to rent that house, but they'd soon would back away because somebody used to come around in the middle of the night when it was dark, searching around. They used to have to move out. So this last one that was there, "You couldn't stay there too long because somebody used to come in there, searching around. He say he would find out. He went on ahead and rented this place by himself and that first night he stayed all night in that house. He heard somebody coming up the road, walking. Finally he entered the house and started walking around in the house. Pretty soon he went to a window and started searching around there by the window. All this time this man was awake. This ghost was doing something, I guess. So he went back out and this man thought to himself, well, this ghost must have left something that he valued. Maybe that's the reason why he comes back to search around. So he looked around the next morning. He was searching by the window, I guess.
