

was laying flat on his face. I guess he just spent...he didn't get to the door yet. He brought him home. Oh, his face was just bloody. So we got back on and we went to this crazy doctor's clinic. We went over there, well he got off, he went in and they sent him. They just checked him and said, "He's all right. Has good pulse, and his blood pressure was normal." He said, "Come back Friday to the Indian clinic. Or if you get real sick again, you come to this clinic." Next day, about ten o'clock I don't know, he was doing something out here, cleaning the yard he come in and said, "Take me down." We took him down, we went in there and I make appointment with him, and I said, I brought my husband back down. He said, "He's got Indian clinic over there. He can wait. Come over there." I said, "All right." I brought him back to Dr. Rupe and told Dr. Rupe what he said, so Dr. Rupe took him in there and said, "You better go to the hospital. So we waited...it was on Thursday, and on Friday we took him down there and well he kept him in there a long time, so I said to Mill Enlow, "Can I go in there and see him?" She said "Sure." So I went in there and he said, "I'm going out of here. It's time for me to go out." He still had patients in there. He said, "I'm going over to my clinic. Can you walk over there?" He said, "Yeah." "I can X-ray you there." he said. So we went in and he took his shirt off and he sat on the chair there and he called this undertaker this Haigler, he called and said, "I need you. Can you come now?" Well, Bob (Haigler) came in and they was listening to his heart. "Listen right here," he said to the other nurse, that other lady that works at the desk. Well, under here they kept listening before they took his X-ray Well they helped him in there to get to the X-ray they got his X-ray His heart was enlarged. But he had to get his heart under here...that's
