

Granddaughter: How? (Discussion in background) How? And they come along and (coughing) he saw a big bunch of quail. And he said, "Hey," he said, "What's your name?" He asked the quail his name. He said, "I'm still the Chief." He said, "The Big Chief." And that old cheatin' man said ahhhhhhhh! Yeah. He said, "My medicine is not with me." He says, "I get it some of these days then." Said, "I take that medicine." One day--he always sat around--one day he hear that ole cheatin' man singing (Kiowa song). He singing that song. Now they find him. They be way back. And said the beak of the quail, he told him say, "Wait till that man come right over here," say, "Your going to fly." He point this arrow. Said, "Your're no good. You can't scare nothin." That old cheatin' man said--Quail said, "I got no medicine with me. I got to get the medicine. Just like you." Pretty soon he come on. He coming (sings Kiowa song), said, "Come on, come on. Shake your tail." He said, "Right here," he said, "Pretty good music right here." He was singing songs. By that time he's right there at the back place. Pretty soon them quails is quiet. You know how the quail do. (Makes noises.) Boy, you ought to see that old Sainday. He's scared off. He fell down in that bluff.

Granddaughter: How does he go? How does he sound? (Kiowa words)

Well, he's scared off. Fell off. (Kiowa words)

Granddaughter: I remember that story (speaks in Kiowa). He thought,

"Why you don't get scared said quail, "Why you fall off that cliff for?"

He's always getting into trouble. (Background conversation)

(Kiowa words)--them quails, (not clear). You old (not clear) you.

You scared me. He said, "I have fallen off the gate." Well, I told you I could scare you."
