

before they have another one. That's the way they believe in way back, but now I think it would be all right to have children in two years. I'm going by my self, of course. My niece, you know, she had children just right close together. And when she washed the diapers she's got two sets of diapers to wash. Young baby and the other child, you know. But me, I just had one set of diapers to wash. And finally I break them from their diapers, and it's all right. That's the way it goes with some women, it's so easy to get caught with a child.

PIERCING CHILDRENS EARS:

(When did they pierce the children's ear?)

Well, when my baby girl was born, her anut came along and used one well, of these cactus thorns, and pierced it's ears, oh, I'll say just about two hours, because they say that baby don't have feeling yet. They just pierce it and I have to tend to it kind of change the straw on and on grease it, finally it got well, and of course, I bought earrings you know, them horsehoe kind. I put it on her and she was wearing earrings when she was just two months old. Yeah, and a lot of them does that. They girls you know, used to be way back, even boys they wear earrings. But nowadays the boys don't wear earrings..just the girls, yeah, that's the way they do.

COYOTE STORY:

(At this point Louise was asked to tell an old story her grandparents might have told her.)

Well, I always tell my grandchildren about a bedtime story. That's the what people call it, in Indian we call it the Coyote story. All right, I tell them ~~what~~ my grandchildren "What kind of story about
