

and he seen a man on horseback coming way over there. Well, he kept going watching; "I know that horse." And he had a rag or some kind of hide that he was waving and going back and forth. "Come here." When he wave at him, that means "stop". He was on horseback and he stopped. And when he waved this hide down or whatever he's got, he motioned for him to come and put that hide down on the ground. That means "come on". That's the signal. All right, finally he come this way, he commenced to lope, and when he got there they both recognized each other and begin to talk to each other. And told him, "Where's the children? Are you the children we left?" They're big you know. He said "Yea, we're the children, but this old lady killed everybody all the children all but two of us, got away." And he said, "Well, we're all back there camping at them two hills, you know, on the other side. Two hills. We're all camping there. We're all starving, no meat or nothing. No buffalo or no deer." But he said, "We got a lot of meat back there." "All right. All right. I'm going back and tell the people." And when they got back he told the people "The children over there, all got killed, all but two." And he told them, "They was your children." And these folks said, "Oh, I want to come back." And everybody was going to camp in their own camp place where they all moved away from before, why they all camped. And the grandma, just give them crabs and all like that cause they was mad at them. And everybody else got plenty to eat, then. And oh, the buffalo was just scarce, they don't know where all the buffalo went, deer. OK one day they run out of meat, and this boy said, "I want everybody to go inside their tent and don't you look out." I tell you this man on horseback was yelling at the children. Everybody to go in the tent and finally he said, "And when I holler, don't you all look out." Boy everybody mind him what chief says. Boy, he had buffalo running and he do that with the hide, you know. He hit it on the ground, well, a bunch of buffalo died. On and on and he killed a lot of them. Finally he come in and this man
