

(Did the doctor tell you to do anything special when you were going to have the baby?)

No.

(When did you tell your parents?)

Well, my sister must have told them. Cause I told my sister I was going to have a baby.

(Was your sister happy?)

Uh huh.

(Was your parents?)

Uh huh. My father spread the word around town. He was already married again.

Lived around Geary and it got around like that. Everyone knew.

(question not clear)

Well, he was glad, he knew I was going to have a baby. And they had what they call Indian gifts and they came down here. He knew I was going to have a baby. He invited us over there one time to visit him and he brought me a lot of baby clothes.

(When did you tell his parents?)

Well, his father wasn't living then, and his mother was not well.

(Did anybody give you any advice to what to do when the baby was coming?)

No. Nothing like that use to go around people. Course I knew about it, give baby showers and all that (not clear). These people around here are old fashion and I had time to get use to it.

(Did the doctor give you any medicine or anything to take?)

Uh. Vitamins or something.

(Did you ever go to an Indian doctor for your baby or before you had it?)

No. Huh.

(Did your grandmother or anybody tell you any special things for having babies--)
