

a lot of them in there. Oh, maybe they scared them and just took off and never did come back or maybe they came back after they left. I don't know and nobody ever did go back and see them.

(Where is this cave?)

I don't know, somewhere out that way. West. That's where the cave was.

STORY II:

(Do you know any more stories?)

I don't know. I was just thinking. Let me see. There's this man and this woman and they took off long time like that you know and her husband said, "Let's go some place and just get away from the folks, and just go on and go on and go on until we come to another place. We might find some owhter tribe, we might find them and maybe we might live with them or maybe they might kill us." They wouldn't like that. They went far away and they got lost and they never did come back. They went for years, they had two little kids, you know, two little boys and they left they took them and left, and they went for years, and this man.. They didn't find no other kind of Indians, no kinds of other tribes, they didn't find any so they just kept a goin' til they come to a big high mountain. And it had a lot of cedar trees up there. They covered that mountain. And the fall came and they made them a house out of that cedar trees, you know. They cut poles and stand them up like that and made a home out of it and they put all the cedar trees around it and keep the wind ffrom coming in and they made a door and this is where they live. And they lived there for a long time, til those little boys they got growed up and just about the size of that little boy here and they would go out with their daddy and instead of..their horses died, you
