

around in there somewhere, they moved there, and finally when they found out the government was bringing all the Comanches back here, they all come this way and that's why they landed up here at Anadarko. That's how come they're all here. But some of the Comanches were southeast of part of Texas and some were in California and some were out there way east of...right up here in Utah and Nevada. Some of them are in there, some Comanches, that left from here to go over there and some of them are in Wyoming...those Comanches and that's how they left from here, and they just live up there then. There's still a bunch of them up there in Wyoming.
