

to use it and way back in years I see and I know that they use to be good doctors for that...the old peoples, but now today you can't hardly get anybody.

PREGNANCY:

(Are there any kinds of practices that a woman should know to do or not to do when she is pregnant? Can she eat anything or go any place she liked?)

Yeah, she could, eat anything that she wants. Trouble is, don't eat too much, because they say when you eat too much the baby gets fat...real fat. Sometimes you can't pass because it be too fat. But now days the c doctors cut you down there and you have a baby, I don't care how big it is but them times the old people all tell you when you pregnant, "Don't eat too much, don't eat too much meat because your baby going to get fat and when you go to have your baby you going to have a hard time." It might kill you or either your baby will smother. It be coming out and just stay there and stay there and won't move. It be hanging out to the shoulders, it be wider up here and the head be sticking half way out. If you don't pass its head out it's going to smother. That's the way the old people told me.

CHILDBIRTH:

(Do you know what a breach birth is?)

No.

(When a child doesn't come out normal. The feet come first instead of the head. What do they call that in Comanche?)

When a womans...it mostly the womans that take care of anyones going to have a baby not the man folks. But theres one man, he died many
