

Charley Carter. Well, I didn't have sense enough to vote. I was about 26 years old. Something like that. 25; somewhere along there. And I had to, all the people from Texas and Arkansas, they'd voted. They's tell me who to vote for. Well, I voted that ticket. I said there ain't no man gonna tell me how to vote anymore. I'm gonna learn how. And I did. And I studied government. Got...had the civil service, City.

(END)