(When was this?)

Oh down to Ft. Worth, Texas. This was the time I told you about when I went to Texas. My sister thought I was too ignorant to - - (Irrevelant.)
