

Grandma said he just shootin' up everything.

(That's why they called him Wild Bill?)

Now Grandma knew Wyatt Earp?).

(She did?)

Yeah.

(Where'd she meet him?)

Up in Kansas. See Grandma was in Kansas a long time. She came people, the Coffeys -- you cuttin' hay. Come down through Kansas and through Coffeetown, down into Oklahoma. See.

(What'd she say about Earp?)

She said he was a dirty dog, and a gun-man. She said he was the biggest crook that ever was. She didn't like any of them. She said -- well, they were old buddies of Grandpa Bill. See. All those people -- this boy was, one that carried those big guns, you know, carried two guns and he couldn't reach for but one. It's true. I saw him, one time, when he was trying to ~~me~~ -- he was old, see. And he was 'bout seventy five or eighty years old. He was out there, trying to shoot, and Grandma got so mad. And she said (Unintelligible words) said, "Who is doin' all that shootin'? Can you see who is doin' all that?" I said, "No, I can't." I said, "I'll go see." She said, Well, watch out." Well, I walked out towards the barn, back south and back of Mom's and Grandpa Bill's. See. And of course, we didn't like him. None of us kids liked him. Because he was kinda crabby and he didn't like me either. I washed all his old pipes with soap and water. (Laughter) Grandma always sneerin'. And now he'd come back every once in a while. Grandpa -- after they were divorced, he was always trying to get on the good side of Grandma. She'd feed him, but she wouldn't let him sleep in the house though. She'd feed him, but (Unintelligible) up to where he would buty this type of tobacco that he used. He used this old Granger T wist and how that old tobacco reaked. That old pipe smelled so bad.
