

they said just about that time they heard somebody coming along. You know, they could hear somebody, you know. They could hear someone, that they were coming. Several of them, you know. In those days those old people were pretty wise. They watched pretty close. So after they laid there, pretty still and said they could hear a whole bunch of people just couldn't understand their language. Went by you know, they went on, went on and they couldn't hear them no more. They stayed there for another couple days. And finally they couldn't, he went out, the old man he went out and try to find what he went out there for, look for it. He couldn't find it. So he laid around, laid around there for another couple days. And finally their meat and all got dried you know, pretty good you know. So they started on their journey again towards their, their home valley. And they, they'd been gone for several months. They'd been gone away from their valley, way off. And they went on, they went on, they stopped. The only place they stopped would be in a little valley where there would be running water in there, timber, stay in there. They'd stay there and they'd eat, rest and then the old man would go out and try to find what they went up there for. And there wasn't no sign of it, wasn't nothing there. They said there was lot of people living up in them places but they couldn't find what they want. So they stayed around there. Finally, they went and came on, came on towards valley, towards their valley. They came on, came on, you know, by day you know and sometime they'd walk a while in the night where they could find shelter you know, over in timber, why they'd stop there. Stay over night. Then right early in the morning they'd move again. In them days you know that uh- (TAPE IS INAUDIBLE --STATIC). They had their own tribe you know, Indians. They run their own tribe you know. Indians, different tribes they have big warpath. And he said they have to watch out after them. They didn't want to get caught out in the open somewhere. So they went on, they went on,