

and they make tepees and they make their beddings with it, their clothes with it. They make their buffalo shirts, and pants too and moccasins, They make all of that they wear for their everyday wear. And of course some of them there is pretty wise and pretty smart where there's a - - would be better material and better equipment and better things for their families. They smart and wise. And some of them are lazy, careless and they the ones that don't have very good clothes. They not dressed neat. They not dressed like they should be. Now that's the way the old people did way back there. And they said that whenever they's a big dance coming on, big Sun Dance and they worship those Sun Dances. See. They have that and they get ready. When they get ready they put on those performances and have a program, to carry on that. And when they make a Sun Dance, they make a big arbor. Big arbor, with big poles and cover up all that top and then on the sides they cover all over - - just that little pathway that goes in there. And those four men - - there won't be more than four men - - just four men would go in there and stay in there for four days without eating, without drinking any water. They don't drink no water, they don't eat nothing for four days. They go in there - that's their religion. When they go in there, they want to bring whatever they go in there for. They go in there for some great purpose - - some good purpose. They go in there and right in there they ask for that whatever they go in there for to ask the great spirit to grant that whatever it might be - whatever they wanted. They wanted to get good health, or somebody's sick who wants to be well, or they needed something that the great spirit would grant to them - show them the way to get that so they have that.

(What do they do in there?)
