trying to get acme way to see if I can get in touch with thom. So, therefore, I mant ahead and stayed there for that reason. I talk to the Great. Sprift but there wasn't no word sent to me from no way. So, "I came on back.
(What was the name of that lake by the way?)
I don't know what the yame of that is. Got a big sign up there though. Frer get into mestorn Montana, you'll find that. Got a big name on it. Got a big poster on there. And they got a fence over there today. Way up high there. and they big as these big yard fence that go around you know, big ohes. They got that kind, but only they tall. Way up there and they stout. And they got an electric outfit come around there and nobody can't try to go in there. D Dangerous for anybody. That water is pretty dangerous to go in-there. They got it clased up and they got that thirg on there. Nobody can't get in there. But you can see, if you come around down there. They got it close enough to see where those tepee poles are still there jet. The tracks are still there yet and the tracks of those people that went in there, the tracks are there jet. and the logs and hormes, everything went under trater. Everything, all their belongjngs. And that's the trath, they went in there; and it's over there today. Itid there today. So, several years after that, several years after that, they went ahead and they moved from where they were originated. They moved farther north from where they lived, they went farther north, I don't know how far, or what the neme of that place, but they wept on further north, quite a waye: And they originate ther for many years. Finally they dedided to go ahead and move back further south, further south into the - - right south of the Kiowa country. They want to move away from that tribe. Stey around there and see what they could find, whaterer it could might be, you know. They right run into something, adght be valuable, to the tribe and the people. So they originate there for. many yeare. They ron from one and to mothor. They move from one place to mother
