

that's where they been originate for many,many,many years. They got friends with the Kiowas, and they got together - the Kiowa-Apaches. They all three got together and they all one instead of three today. That's the way it stands. But now right here, we having trouble among the three tribes. Comanches want to separate and the Kiowa-Apaches and the Kiowas, they want to stay together, but this tribe want to take out. A lot of the Comanches that don't want to be separated. The majority of them don't want to separate. Want to stay with the constitution bylaws that they had made during the treaty. So they all joined together and we are one, instead of three tribes.