

wait for you to figure the bill. They paid for each as they got it.

Mrs.: That's the way Indians pay. They buy one article and pay for it and buy another one.

Mr.: Big Ben came in and he had tin box full of 20 dollar bills, 10 dollar bills and assorted kind of money. And he bought I don't know how much for all the Indians that was around there. After he bought so long, he ran outa money and he drove, he had an Indian boy driving for him. He had a big Pierce Arrow car one of the biggest of that day and he said something in Apache to this Indian boy and the Indian boy went out and got another tin box full of money. And he came back and he just kept a buying until he satisfied everybody. But like I told you previously, I never saw a selfish Indian. If the Indian changed a $20 bill over there, other Indians could get around him and he'd hand him a dollar or two or five. I never saw a selfish Indian.

Mr. K: (unclear comment)

Mr.: they were the best to their children. They bought for the children and they still do.

Mrs. : George big Ben was so big he couldn't stand. We'd have to bring him a chair and let him sit down while he shopped. He was so heavy and so awkward.

(When did he die?)

Mr.s Oh, he's been dead, how long Andrew?

Mr.K: lets see bout 50--

Mrs.: fifty five.

Mr. K: 56 or 55. My dad passed away in '56 I think --

Mrs. : But anyway he was big man and really popular among the, especially
