

(June 27. I'm visiting with Mrs. Nancy Thompson. Same name as my father, Web Thompson. Is your home place here, your allotment?)

This was her mother's place but I had to buy it on account I had to go on pension, you know, and I had to sell mine close to Caney.--

(Close to Caney?)

--and bought this nine acres.

(Nine acres you have here?)

Um-hum.

(Do you have brothers and sisters?)

Their down in -- but one, Solomon Homer, but now the Solomon Homer that died in Durant, but there's another one named Solomon Homer. But the rest of them was little babies when they died, so I don't know them. That was way back.

(Solomon Homer? I wonder if Aaron Homer is kin to him--have you ever heard of Aaron Homer?)

No. But I know Edmond Homer, but that was this Solomons dad. But I heard that he was Homer--I guess he must have been brother to Edmond maybe, I don't know.

(Could have been maybe. I'll find out. He's still in Oklahoma City I think. I'm gonna talk with him. But he was in Ardmore for years. In the Indian Office, wasn't he Pop?)

(Pop: Yeah, he's an interpreter.)

(Interpreter. He's Indian?)

And there's another name. Now what did I say man's name was Banington?

He was my brother's uncle. But I guess he's dead now. I forgot, I forget so much since I been sick, you know. I've been sick for a long time and I don't feel good yet.
