

old lady kept. When they went over there and he seen two of them playing.

"Well, that's just what I didn't want you to do. When there's two, they get real crazy. They get mean. I didn't want you to do. Get crazy and they hard to take care of. Now there's two of them. What can I do?" So it went on and they playing around you know and that old lady told them, said, "I'm going to go to work and you all play around here but be sure now--your grandfather is right in the back, he's laying there asleep--and you all don't bother him."

You know, these two boys said, "Well, I don't know what he's talking about. They ain't nobody here, but just the three of us. He always say right in the back over there, don't never get back there, your grandfather is asleep."

And it was one of them big snakes and that was that womans husband. Big snake.

Big bull snake, I guess or whatever kind of snake laying in the back but they didn't see it. So this boy said, the first one you know, before he got two, the one that came first you know, he's the most powerful one. He said, "I'm going to go look over there." He looked over there and he seen that big snake over there. He called his brother, "Come heré, come here. Bring your arrows.

I got mine, bring your arrows. Let's kill him. That's a snake, we don't want him in here." So these two boys they took that and they shot him with the bow and arrow and they killed him. They killed him dead. So that eveing, that old lady came back and he looked around there, and the first thing she always do is go over there and look, looked over there and she seen her husband dead. Them two boys killed him. So she cried. She said, "You killed your grandpa." He said, "It ain't our grandpa, that's a snake. It ain't no good."

So she start crying worse. So them two boys, they took him and they dragged him and took him to a willow tree, willow, they took him and layed him up on there, and that's why they call it say ah dah. Willow, you know. In Kiowa the willow name is say ah dah. Put him on that. And then the second time after they one that, the second time, that little boy, they had two of them you know. So he said, "Let's roll that thing down again. See if that man is mean."
