

there and nobody can't go in there. They got guards watching there. They stay in that. They stay in that water. Don't want no one to go in there. In the evening, just about dark, well you could hear that drum beating under there and you could hear that hollering under there and them dogs barking under there and you can hear that drum. It sounds still over there yet. That's why they don't want people to get in there.
