

Yeah. You do that. And she will be tickled to death.

(Well, it seems like the group is coming in for lunch. I certainly do appreciate you taking your time to visit with me. I am going to be on the lookout as I talk with people if I am to find any information about the place--the Billy Jack place--that Edgar was talking about. I am not sure you were there with us when we were talking about the Indian place south of here where he saw the tomb stone of the Martin family. If I ever find any information on that any place, I'll write to you. Because I am sure that Edgar would be interested. Something else, I noticed the person you call Hoss, who is Clarence Massengale, I will try to get back there to see him too. And to thank him for telling me about you. I certainly do appreciate the time that you have given me and I have thoroughly enjoyed the visit with you. And I will say Hello to Opal, when I get to Norman.

(End of Side B)