

The Comanches, Kiowas, and Kiowa-Apaches. They negotiated the Medicine Lodge Treaty. Then the Kiowas and other tribes were allotted other land here in Oklahoma in (about 1907.)

Later. No, they were allotted in 1900. Yeah in 1900 because I'll tell you why. You see after they came here, when they came here before the country open, well that was when my grandmother must have been about 18 or maybe 19 years old, at that time, when they got here. So she got married here.

OLD MAN PALLIE:

When they got married over here, well then my grandfather he was a Comanche. They took and they lived about a quarter of a mile or half a mile right south of here. They built a log house. And that's when the government, then, they come in. They come in and they first made this Kiowa they call it, Kiowa Agency. The first that was established there. So when they establish it there, well that's when they promised that as long as the green grass grew and the water flowed, that the government would take care of the Indians ~~of the Indians~~. The three tribes. They would take care of them all as the green grass and the water flowed. That was their promise. And they signed it and they stamped it. The first president of the United States had signed it and said, "It's gonna be so. It's gonna be that way." So it come on when it got in to around Anadarko they camped all around in through there and that's when my grandfather built a log cabin across there. (Near present Hog Creek Curio Store.) So right then he had cattle and he had horses.--wild horses. And they begin to increase. And he had a big heard of cattle and a big heard of Indian ponies.

(Do you remember his name?)

His name was Pallie. Old Man Pallie. There was no middle initial.

(You said he was Comanche?)

Yes. So right then--right after that--after he was established here, you
