

Mexico--the old part of Texas).

So that's where they captured him. And then, you see, when he was a young man he got up big and so he went on his own. And when he went on his own, he built this log cabin here and then they were married, my grandmother and my grandfather. He married a Kiowa.

OLD MAN PALLIE TAKES A SECOND WIFE:

So after they got married, they lived there, so then from there on, my grandfather, he had two wives. After that, he got two wives. So, his other wife lived down here at they call it round Mount Scott. She lived there in that place they call Mount Scott.

(Lincoln: What was her name?)

(Charles can't think of it--some Kiowa conversation and then Lincoln says,

(Lincoln: You mean you don't know your grandmother's name?) (Laughs)

I know my grandmother's name--it's already on there. But this other one--his ex-wife--he had two wives.

(Was she Kiowa?)

Yes, she was Kiowa.

(Brief Kiowa conversation.)

My grandfather always wanted to go up there and see his ex-wife. So one day my grandma told him she said, "Now you have been going a long way to go see your other wife, so I think it would be best for you to go up there and get all of her belongings and bring her here, and put her tipi out here and let her stay here, so you wouldn't be going back and forth. It's a long ways to go back and forth." So he told my grandma, "All right," he said, "I'll leave first thing in the morning. I'll go down there," he said, "and I'll take my wagon and my team and I'll go down there and I'll bring everything." So he went up there after her. And he brought her back. So they put her tipi on the north side of the log house where my grandfather first built. So she went ahead and went and lived in there.
