

(Lincoln: then where did Guy Ware come from?)

She was married before but they divorced and then he brought her over here. So after they brought her over there you see, well then you see--I think they deed this place to Uncle Guy. And that's when Uncle Guy got the place see. That's how come they got the place over because of my grandfather. He had two wives. Well, from there, then we move to Stecker, we moved over there. My grandfather had a two room house over there about a quarter of a mile northwest of Stecker. Yea, this was Old Man Pallie-- same old man. He move from over here to there. I was about five--I was just about four and a half or close to five when we moved away from here and went to Stecker. And he (Charlie Palmer, Charles half brother) was about three. I guess then. He was about four and a half or five, somewhere along in there. So when we moved over there to my grandfather's house there--an old government house--we lived in there. After my mother went and built her a home on my older brother's place about a half mile east of my grandfather's house, east. He built a house--a square top house there. So after we lived here, we stay with my grandfather for many years after that, after we moved to Stecker.

OLD MAN PALLIE GIVES REAST FOR ST. PATRICK'S SCHOOL:

So, one day me and my brother went to school. We first went to school at a Catholic Mission School.

(What was the name of the school?)

It was St. Patrick's Mission--Father Isodore. It was right down there. (pointing east towards Anadarko) where they're tearing it down. When we first went to school, there was a lumber building. There wasn't no brick building. There was lumber. You see, and it burnt down. After we went to school, it burnt down. And after it burnt, they took us to Riverside Indian School for a while, until they got a school built right there in Anadarko. They call it Methvin School. They were rebuilding it--fixing
