

school childrens and the Sisters. I am doing that," he says, "to make you feel that we have love for you. That we love you as a Father. So that's why I wanted you to come--to eat here on this place. I thank everyone of you--all the ones that come to help and I thank everyone of you--all the ones that come to help and everyone who took cart I thank everyone of you all here the same way." We were all standing up. So when grandpa got through talking, he said, "Well, all right Father," he said, "I turn it all over to you." So Father, he got up and he spake, he talked. He talked to the people that were surrounding that ground. He spaked in English. So he was talking there and so when he got through taking then we all sung. We got rules, you know, In school we sing. And then right after that then we pray and then we eat. So we all got ready and when he got throughand then Father Isidore he got up and he start praying. And when he got through praying for the food--when he got through--well then he had a bell there and he tapped it and everybody sit down. Then we was all ready, ready to eat. And they went to eating. And they had waiters there. They had white neighbors there. Ladies, they came down there and the Indians. They all got together and they waited on the tables. And they had I think I seen about four or five big barbeque pits sitting there where they barbaequeed all of that meat. And they had all kinds of fruit--all kinds of stuff on the table. All kinds of things--everything that a person could think about. And he has fed that many school children plus the Fathers and Sisters and their workers.

(What time of year was it?)

Well, I was about seven years old.

(Lincoln? Was it May Day? Was it in November or--)

No, that must have been about--you know, I believe it might have been a May day--see, way back there in our school they use to call it a May Day. We use to have that in our school. So that was the day--May Day--the first day of May. That's when we had that big feast. So they told--My
