

guess which side I got it. All right, that's two times now you win. On this north side. See, this is south side. All right, we make a guess again. I knew you was going to get it. Now, we're going to make one more guess--four times. You found it, now you win. You win it so we have to go four times that way each other. See, you guess and I guess. You take it and I'll guess like you did me. Now that's what they call the hand game. They use, generally, use buffalo teeth or ring or some other thing. That's mostly sometime use that.

Jenny: What about them sticks they use?

That's different. That's rock game.

Jenny: No, them sticks.

This is Hand Game!

Jenny: I know, but Hand Game they have four sticks in right hand. When they win they move them sticks.

They move one stick, you see, you win a while ago.

Jenny: If you miss it, you know, they pass it on that side.

Has four sticks right here and four sticks right here. Those are sticks. And when you win one time, like a while ago, you take this stick and move it over here and you got five. And you keep going and you're on the south side and I'm on the north side. Well, you win as long as you win--one, two, three, four. When you win all of the four, then you get my gasoline. You win the game. That's the Hand Game. But they use elk teeth or buffalo teeth, or ring, or something like that. They throw that. There's lots of tricks to that. You throw it, you know. Throw that way, you see. They throw it.

(They throw from hand to hand?)
