

you got hit, you have to go back and shoot over again. But I make one, two, three and then I throw again and I made three more, I jumped over and I go on until I get to here, and I made six and then I jump over, like that until I get up here.

(Does every woman have her own needle?)

Yes, each woman.

Jehhy: If six are playing, there will be three partners on this side and three on this side. And then they bet. They bet blankets or something. If this side wins, well, they get the whole thing. They get that whole. Sometimes they bet against each other, individuals or something. Two sisters maybe play for shawl or blanket. And they play here, you see, and then they go--there's no cheating here too much unless you went one over to jump over that line.

(What is this that they're playing on?)

They playing on a rawhide, I guess. And they got them marks. I used to have one. My mother had one that was on a cloth, but they got on buckskin. And then they got all marked off--and then it's one, two, three, four bridges. And they play on that and put that rock in the center like you got here. Those are one, two, three, four. One, two--right here. They got one, two, three, four marks or three? (speaking to Jenny)

Jenny: Three marks.

Well, they got three marks here. One, two, three. Now, when they win, they stick this if you hit that three red. Then you mark one, two, three and then you stick it there. You throw another one and then you're liable to hit this and then you have to go back. I mean you have to go back there.

(Well, what if I start here and I throw three, and then I get here.
