

the exact name.

(End of Side A)

SIDE B

(once more..)

pò'â .té'â~ pò'â. té'â~

(O.K. and how do you say ball?)

pā'â dóp. That's just the ball, you know, pā'â .dóp.

(Pā'â. dóp?)

Pā'â.dóp. You tell anybody, "Throw ~~me~~ that pā'â dóp," and he'll throw you that ball--bring that ball. That's pā'â dóp. That's ball.

(Do they gamble when they play this football?)

Yeah, they gamble, too. They gamble with that. You see, you've got to kick this ball with your foot, like that. Kick it and kick it and go on till you get, say 15 yards. And they play that way. Which one would go the farthest and they give it to you and it's made out of either rubber or old rags together, sewn round. And it's a soft ball. They don't buy it in a store. It's just about that big around and they put that on their foot and they kick it. They kick it and sometimes there are some good players.

(Do men and women both play?)

Well, it's mostly men, huh Jenny?

Jenny: Mostly women-folks.

Mostly women.

(When do they play it?)

In the evening. Mostly in the evening. In a big camp, you know, you see them out there where they're in a big camp, you know around river, lake--just about little sun-down after supper they began to play that game among themselves--the women folks. And they bet