

came to a pow-wow or handgame and sit down, she'd grab this little bitty old (braid of) hair and throw it back, and everybody would just laugh. She used to do that when she was a young girl--she had long hair and she just threw it back. She was still doing that to her little bitty old short hair!

(End of Side A)

SIDE B

(Ed Burns talks briefly about the prophet who foretold the coming of the white man.) This person used to prophecy that he'd bring all this modern stuff to make people forget all their Indian practice. He said, "You'll go for their religion and customs and everything. They're the ones that are going to mess you up."

THE CHEYENNE PROPHET WHO FORESAW WHITE MEN AND GREAT CHANGES

Birdie: "He's going to erase your tribal ways," he said. "That man is going to erase all your ways, your traditions." And that's what the white man is doing today.

(Who was it that was telling that?)

Birdie: This same prophet.

Ed: They don't know where he came from and they don't know where he went.

Birdie: He just appeared and disappeared.

Ed: He's like one of these Bible characters. They seem to think that now.

(What did they call him in Cheyenne?)

Birdie: Well, the first one that appeared--one of the prophets that appeared--they had accused him, I think, of killing a man. When this prophet appeared to them they accused him of killing someone. And a certain clan of Cheyennes got together, that they were