

they say they even carry them in there on a canvas. Carry a sick person in there, and the next day they'll just walk out of there. You got to eat that peyote yourself, too. You got to help yourself, too. If you're sick, you got to eat a lot of that.

DOCTORING IN PEYOTE MEETINGS

(Have you ever watched anybody that came in sick like that?)

Yes.

(Could you tell me about any particular case?)

Well, there was a little child right out here. I don't know what was wrong with her, but the baby was sick. It went on and went on and towards morning that baby started to sit up again. It started nursing. Next morning it was all right. It was about two or three years old. I don't know what was wrong--stomach trouble I guess. But at the same time that mother was eating that peyote, too, and getting that peyote in that milk, too, and that child would be talking that milk and it just work on that child.

(Was the child in the tipi all night?)

Yeah.

(Did they give the child peyote to eat?)

No. Just the mother. But the man that was doctoring that child, this man would go over there and just doctor him every once in a while.

(What did he do?)

He'd fan it and try to look for that sickness. But a child, when they get sick, it's hard. Even doctors don't know what's wrong with a child. They're hard to find their sickness. Some of them just die--just burn up with fever or something like that.

(Had this child been sick very long before?)

Yeah, that's how come they brought it over there. That Clyde, he's the one that doctored that. It was about six or seven years ago.
