

Well, he quit drinking and now, he's a church goer. All his family's now in Wyoming. He used to be the biggest drunkard.

(Is this a real brother?)

Yeah that's my real brother, the one that live in Wyoming.

(Is he a Comanche, or is he a - -)

He's a Comanche, fullblld like me.

(He lives at Ft. Washakie?)

He got a wife there. He married into that tribe; Shoshones.

(How many brothere and sisters did hou have?)

I got two brothere and two sisters, The oldest one, a Christian woman, and the youngest one's a Christian boy now, a Christian man. Just us three are not Christian yet. I hope to be a Christian man one of these days before it's too late.

(Would your father have said that people who had peyote way their whole life would have it bad when they die ?)

The way I think, according to the Bible, if you're not - - at the time in the meeyng, you would have a heart attack in there and not ask the Lord for forgive you befroe your heart attack, I believe your're lost, according to the Bible.

(I heard from some peyote people, that there is something in the Bible about ppyote?)

It didn't plainly say it was peyote. It say it, "Whosoever eateth the green herb, is weak." What does that mean? He's weak in the - - you could take it a lot of different ways. You could say that you're weak in your Christian life, or it could say you're weak in the way of living in the Lord, or something. You could take it lot of different ways.

(It seems likd the peyote way is a lot the same as the Christian way.)

Yeah. That's the way I think, but I wouldn't take no chances on it. You know, if I was going to know that I was on the death bed, and go in the peyote tippi, I would ask the Lord to forgive me at that time, and then I would go ahead and use it, because I know that I'M already forgiven. You understand? Of course
