

some Fourth of July celebration either at El Reno or Fort Reno. And someone come along and bought those for forty-two dollars, I think. But whoever that was, I don't know.

LOCAL STORES THAT BOUGHT INDIAN THINGS

(Did you ever hear of a Munger store in Watonga?)

Munger? I know the Munger--yeah, he had a store--Bill Munger.

(Yes, that's the one. We have a lot of things at the university that came from his collection.)

He sold mostly hardware. He had a hardware store. Of course he bought a lot of stuff on the side. He carried--I know I bought a buggy from him. A one-seat buggy, with side springs, you know. A Studebaker, with a set of brass-trimmed harness and little fine (unintelligible word)--And I had to go after it what I bought from him. And he told me to always come back periodically and see if everything was all right. Checked every thing. I left that buggy when I went off to school. Well, I bought that mostly for my dad and mother. They'd go and visit short distance around the neighborhood and my mother learned to harness that team we had. It was a nice, wide, low buggy, and she liked it. It had a good top. Handy for them.

(Back in this time, around 1902, were any of the Arapaho women still making their own buckskin?)

Oh yeah. They do today. Not their own, but they make it for commercial hire--

ARAPAHO AND CHEYENNE DRESS STYLES

(You mean they tan the deer hides themselves?)

Oh yeah. They tan deer hides and they make up the size--they get the size of a girl and make it up--strictly Arapaho style. That's Arapaho style that the Cheyennes and Arapahoes wear now. The Cheyennes were not much on buckskin. They liked to show the color and outward appearance in the background, so they used a lot of this--in their buckskin elk teeth dresses and shell dresses--they used this strouding. Wool, that had a white selvedge edge, for their dress costume. The Arapahoes always used buckskin. And the designs on all these Cheyenne and Arapaho dresses are Arapaho. Did you ever get hold of that Sister Inez (Hilger) and this other girl that's got that book out on child
