

And sure enough she live many years after that. She got well. I didn't think she was going to get well but she healed up.

(Do you have any other secret medicines that you can't tell me about?)

I believe that's the only thing. My boy ask me about it one day and I said, "I'll tell you but don't tell nobody." He never did--"sometimes, the years be gone, and if anything in the family have open sore for long time, you put that on and get all right. You know, the only way I could tell you (about cancer medicine) is that you take some of it and let them analysis it you know, get to it and see how it works, and if it works I'll ask them for money, but before that--unless they find out how it works is the only time I would ask them to pay me but I just let them study about it--all how it comes out. Its been a long time since my father got this-- I was about ten years old when he cured this woman, about 2 or 3 of them besides that woman--his niece and one old man--his ears was just like that. You know, half of them--his ears was eaten up already and he was--when he got well he lived for many years that old man. And this other woman, if they cut you open, have cancer, I believe if its in liquid, they could just spray it over that sore place where it is. That's what I think. Instead of putting that powder on it. Unless they could understand and fix somebody with it, because when it stays on there, it's going to dissolve you know. After awhile when its healing up--when they cut you open. I think--I know it'll get them well because I seen those three with my own eyes that dad got them well. Long time, a lot of people used to be like that.

(Cancer?)

Cancer right though their necks. Under their arms. Places you know. I think--you know up to today--we didn't know it was cancer way back there-- and up to today that when people break out somewhere like that and the doctor says its cancer, I think way back in years and say, "Well, my dad cure that kind of sore." I always says that, you know, just to myself.
