

that's what Ted told me to do and I kicked her and up to this day I fell so hard I bruise my elbows and my knees and my legs was broke. I was cracked about right in here, and there was a chip gone and it didn't work it's way out till two years ago.

(All that just because you refused?)

Daisey: Yeah.

Chas: You see, that's where they get most of the people where they accept.

(They're afraid not to.)

Chas: That's right.

Daisey: We had a seven month old daughter. There wasn't a thing wrong with her. Her name was Edna Lynn and when I told you I was on fire and then I hemmrrage and they took me in a ambulance to the hospital, they took the baby and in an hour and a half that baby was dead, they didn't know what was wrong with her. And they had to perform and autopsiy -- we couldn't send it because she was well. Nothing wrong with her. And her stomach was upside down. And what could have caused it? We didn't never know. That's always been a puzzle.

Jack: That the(--) that was in; that lmedicine all the time. Maybe that was the one that brought her stomach upside down. That's way it witch her or something, you know.

Daisey: So they said our grandmother was a powerful woman. They told us no to ever accept it see, and grandpa Jimmy had half of it but she had the other half.

(What was your grandmother's name?)

Daisey: I don't even know her name anymore. Anyway she had something to do with squirrels and--

Jack: Yeah, I think you got some good stories, something like the kind we
