

(What's he say?)

Ah--he just kinda -- But now they do that to get (--). And they pay 'em too much. kBut lord, I don't see how they can ever come that The layout grounds and you have to plant about $\frac{1}{2}$ pound of (--o and one thing and another, on it. And that's why I said I don't see how they make it go. I been thinking that for years. But they higher-- every year.

(Sounds like they are gonna talk theirselves out of some money after-while.)

Yeah, you; betcha. And talkin' about the cattle price now you can take most any kind of steer or hefer if she's fat, she'll bring in a hundred dollars or better. I bought many fine calfs use to go down--. Just go down around down and check those calves around the side of a mountain that all there down along there. For $20 or less buyin' calves and now; it'd be $200 a head It's the fairest preposition.

CHANGING IN INDIANS:

Are you out of Norman?

(Yeah.)

How long you live down there?

(I Hadn't been there but a year. I'm from South Carolina.)

Oh, South Carolina That'd be quite a story for you ;go get all that and (--) back.

(I'm going to it at the library in Norman That's who I'm doing it for.)

I wish you could get a hold of somebody else around here and old timer like me and he's tell you just like I told you how, things use to be.

(Well, I've talked to some around here.)

Well, they've talked just about like I did Now people I don't believe
