LOCATION OF BATTLE OF CABIN CREEK FORT

I just know where it's at and the Battle of Cabin Creek Fort that use to be where the battle was out on the prairie, there just in the edge of the timber, well they dug them, I think they call fox holes and piled up the dirt and they said that dirt is still piled up. Those little knolls all along, close to a trench. See I think we must have moved to the country (not clear) just like I went in the store this morning and bought something and turned around went out and never paid for it. Got way up in the sidewalk and happen to think of it and of course this close friend of mine was working there and she just died laughing. She said "I thought you'd find that out pretty soon." Now that's embarrassing. (not clear)--the nurse was here. She was one of them Vista workers. She told me said, I'd like to have one of them books. ---and I said all right, I'll just write to her and tell her to send you one. And she said no, we'll just beat that. We'll just get in the car and go up there and get it. Oh fine. When I got up there she like to squeeze me to death, she says Fan, this is the first time I seen you since we was married. I couldn't remember.

(--In traveling in the early days, you didn't have anything like gravel roads through here?)

Oh there was great big rocks, just no roads and I remember one time--you had to, always had to whittle kindling you know to start a fire? She was whittling pine and ran a big splinter right in here and pop couldn't get it out. So we had to go to Vinita and get the doctor to get it out. It was on south Wilson were the doctors office was, upstairs in
