

Yeah. Yeah, that's his own mother. My uncle Ben you know, well, that's his own mother.

(Is Yada' ilni' his father?)

Yeah. That's his own father. Yada' ilni'

(Did they have any other children besides Ben?)

Yeah, one, boy--man--you know. He was in Ft. Sill soldiers, long time ago. When they started Ft. Sill, my uncle was one over there. (probably a scout)

(Roy: What was his name, mom?)

Charlie, Charlie something.

Man: Might be the same one like your grandpa's name, that last name.

Yeah, (speaks in Apache)

Yeah. Long time, when they made Ft. Sill, there was soldiers over there. My uncle--when there was no white man--just Ft. Sill.

(I see. Do you know what his Indian name was? This Charlie?)

They got hard name my uncle does.

(Do you remember what it was?)

It's something like "wagon wheel". It's hard. ba' bibah, my uncle's name. That Ft. Sill soldier you know. ba' bibah ba' bibah ba' bibah -- something about long time ago, something. Old time wild people, you know.

(All right would you say that once more?)

(Did you say that they called him "wagon wheel"?)

Yeah ba' bibah -- pretty near like that.

(How would you say "wagon wheel" in Apache?)

(Molly give Apache phrase which sounds nothing like above term.)

(Well this ba' bibah was that Apache Ben's own brother?)

Yeah, that's his own brother.

(Could you tell me any more about him, you know, what he did at Ft. Sill or anything like that?)

I don't know. He just soldier that's all. I don't know, you know, --

(When did he die?)

A long time. I don't know what month. Long time. I never see when he die. I just know it. My uncle tell me--My uncle Ben
