

Rena, that's Bela's sister's daughter.

(Was Rena one of your friends?)

Yeah.

(Do you remember any other stories that these old ladies told you?)

No, that's all.

(Did they tell you any more stories about Monkey?)

Yeah, that's all they tell me, and that buffalo see, I told you, they tell me.

(Do you remember any other stories about monkey?)

Monkey's that's all they tell me, Monkey. Monkey, you know, hand game. That's all. I never know that other ones.

(What about your grandmother, did she tell you some other stories?)

They tell stories same ones, you know, because they go around long time. We don't know, we're gone see. We don't know nothing. We don't know.

(Did your grandfather ever tell stories?)

No. My grandpa didn't. They don't tell stories.

(You know you were saying that this Big Whip lived down there close to your grandparents?)

Yes, east, you know, across the creek.

(Who else lived there with him?)

Just him and his wife. They ain't got no children. He married an Indian first, and after that woman died, he married a Mexican woman. And see, she got one boy. He married that Mexican.

(What was the name of his Indian wife?)

I don't know. I don't know her name. I seen her but I don't know his name.

(Was she Apache?)

Yeah, she Apache. I don't know her name, you know.

(Did you ever know the name of that Mexican woman he married?)

No. I don't even know her. I don't go down there. I don't know. If I go over there, but I never did.

(Do you--would you remember about how old you were when you got married?)

No. See they can't find my what-you-call it. (birth date) They
