

(Well, I'm glad I got to visit with you. And I guess we better go down and see if they're about ready to start this ceremony. They want you to make another speech or something.)

Boy has got films, he wants to take pictures.

(Yeah, I wish I had of brought some films. Well, maybe somebody be taking pictures.)

Went to Cherokee Trading Post down there is kind of high.

(Gosh, that's a long way. Didn't they have any in Geary?)

They was closed.

(You might get here in time when it's over with, take picture of your old house maybe.)

--Old man's here.

(Yeah, he's sure got a remarkable memory, you know it? What was that you said now?)

Jesse Chisholm must really be kicking around down there. Seem like--

(You feel the ground moving?)

THE CEREMONY BEGINS WITH A PRAYER

Our Father in Heaven, we thank Thee for this land in which we dwell, and for the opportunity that we have coming out and paying tribute to those that have done so much to make this land so enjoyable for us. We pray Heavenly Father, that we might look to their lives that we might glean from them those things that will enable us to live together better today. Grant unto us, Heavenly Father, that we might ever be mindful of our heritage, that we might ever have the desire to make this a better land for our children to dwell in. Guide us, Heavenly Father, through this day, throughout any tomorrows that we might have on this earth, for this is our prayer in Jesue name, Amen.
