

what he got they take them out and burn the whole thing. The gun, saddle, and the horses, why they kill his horses, then everything. They just put them away - burn 'em up. They don't think about 'im anymore. Then we just kept back more in the mountains. Next day they said they want to go down to Mexican town somewhere, so they started off. In the morning we started. We're going a long ways, just about, way afternoon, we got over there. They camped. They keep coming, they camp - keep coming until sundown. In the morning then I got up and look around.. Town just about  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile from us. The creeks right along here. There's a town there. So the town, that little town, I forgot it's name, but then there, we call them, we call them Kidascues that's what we call them. In the morning there two wagon coming in from that town. Coming in there, one of them, first one, there's nothing but whiskey, bottle of whiskey, there's whole lot of them. Then the next wagon there's nothing but corn, shelled corn. So, when the wagon come in there, why these Mexicans - just motioned to come on. They motioned - the Indians goes over there. These Indian squaws go over there, why - give them the Mexican whiskey for - oh, about six of them. Six bottles they take 'em away. Just keep on take 'em away. They sold a lot of them, that corn, they don't care much about that corn. They rather have that whiskey. Then about 2 o'clock, about 2 o'clock the whole camp right on the creek there - the whole camp - everybody singing away and just running around. All - they seem like they happy. But they don't know what's coming to them. And then my mother came down there and she said, "We wanna get away from here before sundown." So she went around with her ladies, a man, about oh, - about 3 or 4 men, she went and told them that to get away before sundown. "Going to be happening, something happen tonight right here. So you all get away." We going pretty soon. Soon as we get things ready. So we didn't take any of that whiskey.. So we went - started off, we went back across the creek. Sun's up yet. When I go around
