

muscle - everything. That time when I was young, you couldn't find no little man. You can't find no short men. All the big men, when you seen them - you seen - you get scare them - they say. They all just get on each side - line. Then one night and tomorrow morning they going to have the war. That war in morning. And then somebody told him, that these want to talk to him all the time. Now, you tell your men, all of them, sent the men both ways. No man, your man, none of them going to get killed. I'm going to take these ammunition and bullets and pull them out. Just nothing but shells. They going to use. "Nobody going to get hurt. So you tell your men about that there - they need not be afraid. Alright. He went back to man all around for he told them nobody going to get killed. Well the next morning, early morning, started the war. They fight and fight and fight and fight. Pretty near sun down they just clean them out. When they started coming in together to fight, these men very few of them got a gun, six shooter, very few of them. But most of them got a arrow. These Mexicans just shoot and shoot, but these Indians get closer and closer and these Indians use arrow. Oh I guess, they said nothing, just hit them with the arrows, they got there. Some of them just fight with their knives. They don't get hurt, but by nearly sundown, they kill all of them. Everyone of them. Besides this little, little - like a creek. Like a little place there. He said while the Mexican was laid out there. They just piled up like this. Said oh, we can't tell you how many we killed, he says. When they want water they come over there and they have blood running from there, just like water he said. Coming back there. Said that's what I done. From there, from that day, my name was way up there - Geronimo's name, Geronimo's oad. He's bad man. That's what they say. Who done it first place? They done it. They leave my mother, sister, and brother alone. He said, "They done first. So I done afterward myself." He said, "That's not my fault. But they always blame me like that." Then we always have, they was out there
