

it seemed like somebody's making music down there."

So finally this younger brother says, "All right," and talked to his brother. And his brother was one of the leaders, his older brother. So he told his brother, "Well, all right. You can have my horse." That's what the younger brother said--"You can take my horse and I'm going to go down there and see what's going on," he says. So his older brother says, "No," he says, "Let's leave things the way it is. You could keep your horse and I could keep mine, just like you want it." Younger brother says, "No," he says, "This kind of a thing I like to look for. 'Cause that might give me a little experience."

So these boys they want to get out of there 'cause they was too close to that camping place they picked out. "Let's move on." So that younger brother told 'em, "All right, you all could go on," he said. "Certain spot over there," he says, "Where there's places like these waterholes--if I'm not there a certain time you all could just go ahead and go on. I'll catch up with you someplace."

So this younger brother, he got ready. So he fix himself up good. I guess he had some buckskin clothes on. So he fixed it up tight where nothing wouldn't catch, you know. Nothing wouldn't scratch him or something like that. So, this group they went on. So this younger brother he went down to see what was what. So he got right close to that place, and when he got close to that place, well--he had one of the best horses he had--he fixed him up good. So he tied it where he could just jump right on it and go on his way. So he fixed up his weapons. Fix it where he could, if he had to, fight his way out--that's the way he fix himself up.

So the closer he got to this place what was going on. So he stop and listen. So somebody comes out after wood--takes the wood back in. So he got ready. So, somehow, this leader already seen that. So he told his members inside that tent somebody's coming. "When he comes," he says, "Just be the
